RE: The NVIDIA GPU Litigation, Case No. 08-cv-04312-JW

Clerk of the Court:

The purpose of this letter is objection to the proposed settlement in the NVIDIA GPU Litigation, Case No. 08-cv-04312-JW.

The reason for my objection is due to the fact that although my HP Pavilion laptop has incurred the same identified damage due to the faulty graphic processing unit by Nvidia, my specific model, the HP Pavilion dv2700t, is not included on HP's list of affected computers.

Enclosed is documentation of the order placed directly with HP, including dates, cost and specifications. Indicated is a ship date of April 22, 2008, and the 128MB NVIDIA GeForce 8400M GS graphic processor. The machine no longer displays anything on the screen (blank) and is therefore completely unusable. I was told by HP over the phone it would cost in excess of $400. to have the motherboard replaced.

Further information of affected computer:

Product Name: HP Pavilion dv2700t
Sn: 2CE8152BP7
Pn: KQ654AV

In fairness, I believe the settlement should include this model as one of HP's affected computers and that compensation to me by HP is in order.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

Patrick Yusko
